1.5 Non-Profit Organizations

Square Bracket Associates (since 2008): Co-Founder. Square Bracket Associates is dedicated to publishing free and open-source books about Squeak, Smalltalk and related topics. SBA is not a publishing house. We are a group of individuals who are volunteering some of our time and effort to the release of open-source books that are in the interest of the Smalltalk community. Currently, we have three books in print. Three more are in preparation.

<http://squarebracketassociates.org>

ESUG (since 2004): Board Member of the European Smalltalk Usergroup. ESUG organizes a yearly conference for industry and academics. The conference is attended by 150-170 people. In addition, ESUG has a program to support students attending international conferences. ESUG supports publications of books, articles and talks about Smalltalk.

<http://www.esug.org>

Squeak Germany e.V. (2002–2007): Co-Founder and Member of the board until May 2007.

Squeak e.V. is a registered, tax-exempt german non-profit with the goal to support the use of Squeak and eToys in Germany. <http://www.squeak-ev.de>

1.6 Open Source Projects

Pharo (since 2008): Co-founder and core developer. Open Source Smalltalk based on Squeak. Co-author of Pharo by Example (<http://pharobyexample.org>).
Website: <http://pharo-project.org>

Reflectivity (since 2005): Reflectivity provides extensions to the standard reflection features of Smalltalk for both structural and behavioral reflection: (i) Structural reflection is extended by sub-method reflection: the structure of method bodies has as a first class and causally connected representation that can easily be extended and annotated. (ii) Behavioral Reflection is provided by a new and improved version of Geppetto, a realization of Partial Behavioral Reflection as pioneered by Reflex.
Website: <http://scg.unibe.ch/research/reflectivity>

Bytesurgeon (since 2004): ByteSurgeon is a library to transform binary code in Smalltalk. It takes full advantage of the flexibility of the Squeak environment to enable bytecode transformation at runtime, thereby allowing dynamic, on-the-fly modification of applications. ByteSurgeon operates on bytecode in order to cope with situation where either the source code or a full compiler is not available, while providing appropriate high-level abstractions so that users do not need to program at the bytecode level.
Website: <http://scg.unibe.ch/research/bytesurgeon>

Squeak (1998–2008): Active participant in the Squeak community. Co-founder of The Squeak Foundation, Co-founder of Squeak Germany e.V. (board member 2003-2007). Responsible (together with Stéphane Ducasse) for the release 3.9 of Squeak which is used widely in research and industry. Co-author of Squeak by Example (<http://squeakbyexample.org>). The book has been translated to french and downloaded more than 88.000 times.
Website: <http://squeak.org>

AtisWiki (1998–1999): Implemented one of the first open source Wiki systems. It was used by both universities and industry. Later, UseModWiki was developed based on AtisWiki. From January 15, 2001 until early 2002, UseModWiki was used to run all versions of Wikipedia.
